HONESTY IS-NOT ALWAYS THE BEST POLICY

We assume that audiences come to the theatre to be entertained. Our biggest problem is to determine an adequate definition for the word "entertainment." To some it is the excitement of "West Side Story,', while to others it is the drama of 'Room At The Top", while to still others it is the rollicking good humor of an Alec Guinness comedy. Every once in a while a film comes along, and in an effort to classify it, we find that there has never been another like it. We do not want to present THE MARK purely as a sensuous, sensational film. We THE MARK, even though it has one of the most tender love affairs ever filmed, in which a man achieves his first genuine relationship with a woman. THE MARK, we feel, is so much more than a love story. We do not want to refer to THE MARK as another adult drama from Great Britain, in a league with "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning" and "Room At The Top" We feel that THE MARK is for deeperreaching than these and stands on its own merits. And we do not want to call THE MARK a psychological drama, since it is so much more searching a study of a man's innermost thoughts than any we could call to mind. For THE MARK has the ring of truth about it. THE MARK, in short, is a motion picture that breaks all the rules. It dores to be different

Law Institute's Model Penal Code

Final approval by the American Law Institute of a model penal code that has been in preparation for a decade marks a milestone in the administration of criminal justice in the United States.

Designed as a guide for the re-examination now going on in many states, the code embraces the philosophic basis of criminal law, definitions of crimes and provisions for sentencing and correction of offenders.

The code seeks a unified approach to criminal law in place of the wide disparities and lack of logic in evaluating crimes and the adequacy of punishment now prevailing among the

How difficult it will be to achieve the code's objectives is shown by the lack of uniformity in sentencing even within the federal court sys-There are other aspects of the administration of criminal justice that are often incomprehensible to the public. They begin in the magistrate's courts. And there is the perennial No two crimes, no two criminals and, more important, no two judges, are exactly alike. Sentences for similar offenses can be lenient or severe depending, for one thing, on whether the judge is influenced more by his hope for the defendant's rehabilitation or by his belief in the social benefits of deterrence.

But when all the difficulties have been conceded, it must be admitted that from the public's standpoint there is much that is irrational about current procedures and practices, much that undermines its confidence in the administration of criminal justice. The American Law Institute's model code should encourage corrective measures long overdue.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

War Is A Dirty Word

Whenever one says: But why not war?, the conversation freezes. War is a very dirty word. There is, at the moment, war in Vietnam, war in Laos, American troops in Thailand, war in Indonesia, a concentration of troops in West Berlin, submarine bases in foreign lands, missile bases all over the world.

But there is no war. In fact, we are supposed to believe that we are living in a state of peace. But where is the peace? Our budget for 1962-63 is a war budget and we would be justified in assuming that the war budget will continue for many years.

Surely, on this most pressing problem, we need to be realistic. We need to admit what actually exists.

The reason that it is possible for politicians to assume that war does not exist is that the current war is fought by different methods and by different weapons. For instance, the Russians spent a month exploding hydrogen bombs and now we are doing the same thing, in the name of science. Actually, this is a form of battle, each side saying to the other, "Look what I've got," "Look what I can do."

It is this curious war which overlays the world like a cloud. Every act of government is affected by it. Each government gauges the strength, at the moment, of the opposing sides. Presently, for instance, de Gaulle believes that he can restore France to be the central nation of Europe-that is. Western Europe, which has so long been dependent upon the United States. The great success of the Common Market leads the Western European countries to believe that they can free themselves from economic and political dependence upon the United States and at he same time set a force sufficiently powerful to relieve them of the fear of conquest by Russia.

Thus the current phase of a prolonged war is being fought by new and unusual physical and political means and we need to adjust our minds to that reality.

Had the United Nations served its original purpose, it might have been able to force this war into a debate within its halls. But the United Nations is actually a weaker body than the League of Nations was. Perhaps it is the diffusion of power which comes from having too many members and too many groups; perhaps it isis due to the age which seems to breed inefficiency. But it seems quite clear that the United Nations is not the place to settle the major issue of war.

Nor do Summit Conferences lessen the war activities of the contending nations. Beginning with Teheran (1943) and continuing to this very moment, Summit Conferences have occurred or have been planned.

Only at the Summit Conference can some agreements be reached minimizing the cost and consequences of the present war. Thus far, the Summit Conferences have failed to accomplish anything of value, largely because of Russian stubbornness. This stubbornness is produced by Russian successes. Should Russia encounter failure, the Russians might become more willing to make concessions.

But these concessions can only be temporary because the Russians dare not move too far from their evangelical purpose which is that all the world must sooner or later be subverted to Marxism.

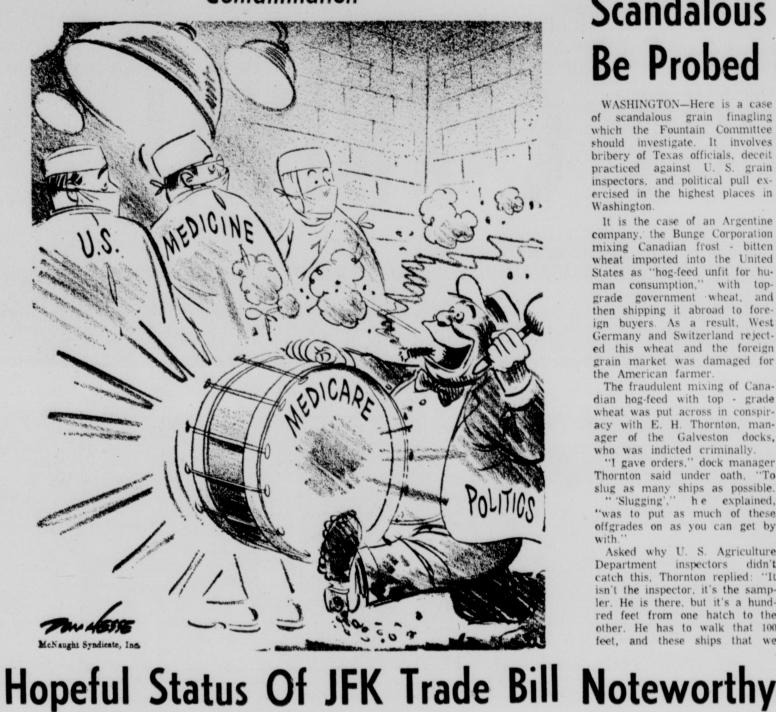

Wars for territory are easy to describe but psychological wars are often beyond understanding. They suffer from a fanaticism which reduces humanity to a theory and one side or the other plunges into methods which they themselves abhor. The goal is so clear that the means seem trifling, as long as they seem to be pragmatically efficient. There can be neither low nor morals in such a

This is our present situation but it is very, very bad manners to talk about it in such terms. No, indeed! One calls it peace and bombs are exploded for scientific advancement. Also the astronauts circle the Earth for pursuit of pure science! Also we are going to the moon with the same objective. Peace! Ain't it

It is because we find it so pleasurable to tease ourselves into believing the best. I suppose that is why marijuana is becoming such a business. However, we need to face facts as they are and live accordingly. We are at war with the Soviet Universal State. Our enemies are all the Communist countries, not only Soviet Russia and Red China but also Yugosiavia and

Scandalous Grain Finagling Should Be Probed By Fountain Committee

WASHINGTON-Here is a case of scandalous grain finagling which the Fountain Committee should investigate. It involves bribery of Texas officials, deceit practiced against U. S. grain inspectors, and political pull exercised in the highest places in Washington. It is the case of an Argentine company, the Bunge Corporation mixing Canadian frost - bitten wheat imported into the United States as "hog-feed unfit for human consumption," with topgrade government wheat, and then shipping it abroad to foreign buyers. As a result, West Germany and Switzerland rejected this wheat and the foreign grain market was damaged for the American farmer.

The fraudulent mixing of Canadian hog-feed with top - grade wheat was put across in conspiracy with E. H. Thornton, manager of the Galveston docks, who was indicted criminally.

"I gave orders," dock manager Thornton said under oath, "To slug as many ships as possible. 'Slugging'," he explained, "was to put as much of these offgrades on as you can get by

Asked why U. S. Agriculture Department inspectors didn't catch this, Thornton replied: "It isn't the inspector, it's the sampler. He is there, but it's a hundred feet from one hatch to the other. He has to walk that 100 feet, and these ships that we By Drew Pearson might have selected to slug would start at night. And he can't climb from one hatch to another in a few minutes.' Bribery Of Dock Manager

Testimony indicated some of the big grain companies deliberately shipped spoiled wheat from Canada, where inspection is much stricter, to American ports where inspection is lax. This gave them a three-way advantage: 1, lower duty on wheat classified as hogfeed; 2, getting paid the U. S. government subsidy for export; getting a share of top-grade S. government wheat for which their spoiled wheat was substituted.

All this was accomplished through friendly elevator managers. Testimony revealed that $5,500 was paid to D. J. Sweeney, assistant superintendent of Elevator B at Galveston during the three-year period that Canadian hog-feed was secretly mixed and loaded. The payments were made by S. P. Perich, vice president of the Stone Forwarding Co., which handled all shipments for the Bunge Corp.

One revealing letter to W. G. Kellogg of the Bunge office in Minneapolis from R. E. Bailey in Fort Worth, indicated that other corporations were trying to get in on the wheat "slugging" racket

"The Galveston wharf manager told me that Cargill had been applying much pressure to get good mix out of the Gulf but that he was going to take care of Bunge first, as he appreciated the current association. You, of course, know the details of our arrangement with him."

When this letter was read by the Senate Agriculture Committee to elevator manager Thornton, he commented: "Well, we take care of our customers. Cargill was not a customer of ours."

Ike Intervenes When E. H. Thornton and officials of the Bunge Co. were about to go on trial, following their indictment, Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas flew to Washington, January 25, 1955, lunched with President Eisenhower, and on February 12, at a hurriedly called special Saturday session of the U. S. District Court in Houston, the Justice Department asked that the criminal indictments be dropped. Orders had come direct from Attorney General Brownell.

E. H. Thornton is the father of E. H. Thornton Jr., then Texas highway commissioner and Gov.

Shiver's campaign manager. They were roommates in college.

Although the Bunge Corporation, which cannot go to jail, pleaded guilty and was fined $5,-000, the incident created a bad precedent as to law inforcement for grain inspection in Texas. Some other cases did go to trial. Three officials of the Transit Grain Co. of Fort Worth, who also slugged ships, were fined $20,000 each and given three years in jail, while the agents for Bunge Corp. in Houston, who were caught bribing William Fellrath, manager of the Houston public elevator, to the tune of $14,229, did go to trial and were convicted.

Nevertheless, the word got around Texas that if you knew the right people in Washington you didn't have to worry about cheating Uncle Sam on crop surpluses. This lax atmosphere unquestionably led to such cases as that of Billie Sol Estes.

As E. H. Thornton bragged under oath of the Senate Agriculture Committee: "On foggy days the windows of the elevator would be conveniently left open to permit moisture to enter the elevator, thereby increasing the weight of the wheat. This practice would inure to the benefit of the elevator as overages.

"During a five-year period we made a profit of over a million dollars on overages."

This did not take in account. of course, the effect on the American wheat market abroad when foreign customers received moldy.

The President has spent much time conciliating the leaders of big industries, such as oil and textiles, who might have thrown a heavy weight against the bill. The Textile Manufacturers Association actually ended by endorsing the measure - a remarkable step. In this respect, the progress of the trade bill has been like the Sherlock Holmes story, in which the dog's failure to bark was a major clue. Add to this that Rep. Add further that the trade bill is just about the only item on the Kennedy program which House Republican Leader Charles Halleck has not made a partisan issue.

These are the chief tangible reasons why the bill is in good shape. There are also two intangibles. One is depressing. The country and the Congress are alike over-optimistic, in the sense that they are obviously unprepared for the skinflint bargaining approach which the Europeans will surely adopt when the trade bill passes. But the other intangible is cheering. It was well summed up by Wilbur Mills, who had this apophthegm:

unction. They show a superficial sweetness, even in moments of pain. Probing the depths of their hearts is more difficult than exploring a mine with a penny candle. In my time, I have met many of many faiths. Some were great. Some were small. Almost all of them were impatient in the face of the weakness of men. Some were impatient with themselves. None were impatient with God.

Greatness in the clergy is difficult to define. Once I met a Baptist minister in Texas-the name escapes me-who gave himself away until he was poverty-stricken. He could not bear to see hunger in "the least of these." Pastor Niemoller of Berlin, the man who defied Adolf Hitler, had greatness, but I do not know the substance of greatness.

Have you even seen the baby candor in the eyes of the late Rabbi Stephen Wise? Schweitzer? Pius XII? How about the militancy in the eyes of Bishop Pike of the Episcopal Church? Recently, I met a Hindu holy man with orange stripes on his forehead. He had a loin cloth and a stick. All he did was beg with one hand and give to the poor with the other. His old legs were as thin and gnarled as his cane.

The thing which led to these thoughts is a new book by Robert I. Gannon, S.J. It is entitled "The Cardinal Spellman Story" and it deserves broad circulation because it traces, with accuracy and bluntness, the career of a brilliant churchman. Francis Spellman is one of the most respected churchmen in the world, an American patriot of herculean size, a crusading battler, a writer who props himself in bed before sheets of paper and a pen, and a man of extraordinary mercy.

These things I know. Some things are not in the book. For example, when William Chenery of Collier's Magazine insisted on paying $50,000 for the serial rights to the first Spellman book, tion This Day," it was the Cardinal who refused the money and, when Collier's remained adamant, Spellman ordered the money sent to the unwanted babies at the New York Foundling Hospital. How do It know? I was an editor at Collier's. I saw the check.

How about the time he was at a consecration in Natchez? Someone pointed out a young woman and two children in the crowd and said that she had just received word that her husband had been killed in the war. Who saw Cardinal Spellman slip a personal check into the lady's hand and say: "For the college education of your son-his son."?

There is a sense of humor, too. Once, he was watching a ball game from a box seat when he was hit by a foul tip. Roy Campanella, the Dodger catcher, walked over and apologized. right," said the Archbishop, "the

Or, when he was in Ireland on a diplomatic mission for Presi-us dent Roosevelt and the reporters tried to pry some secret truths from him. All he said was: "At home I have a stuffed fish over a mantle. Underneath is a legend. It says: 'If I hadn't opened my mouth I wouldn't be here."

There are as many images of Spellman as you might see standing in the center of a hall of mirrors. He administers his archdiocese as though his soul depended on it-as indeed it does. Physically, the Cardinal is a small, fast-moving man who knows, at all times, what he proposes to do and how he is going to do it. He listens to his subordinate bishops, but the final decision is always

As I said before, it isn't easy to look into a clergyman's heart. Father Gannon has managed to do it. One of the great anecdotes is the story of the lost bishop. His name was Bonaventure F Broderick, and Cardinal Spellman found him running a gasoline station near Millbrook. New York. Because of a mistake in orders, Bishop Broderick had been lost to the Catholic Church for 35 years.

Cardinal Spellman was under no obligation to find him or reclaim him. Still, he drove to the filling station, located the old man, re-established him in the church, sent him to a hospital to regain his health, and brought him to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where Bishop Bonaventure lived out the remaining few years.

The old man died and his body reposed in state as his young friend the Cardinal sang the pontifical mass over his remains. When the old man's will was read, it stated that his precious possessions—the pectoral cross, the chains, the episcopal rings and crozier, had been left to the Car-

It is, as I say, a fine book. Out of all the characters in it, I feel that the great Christian is the Cardinal's mother, who wrote to him: "Be a good priest. All else is vanity."...

Law Institute's Model Penal Code

Final approval by the American Law Institute of a model penal code that has been in preparation for a decade marks a milestone in the administration of criminal justice in the

Designed as a guide for the re-examination now going on in many states, the code embraces the philosophic basis of criminal law, definitions of crimes and provisions for sentencing and correction of offenders.

The code seeks a unified approach to criminal law in place of the wide disparities and lack of logic in evaluating crimes and the adequacy of punishment now prevailing among the

How difficult it will be to achieve the code's objectives is shown by the lack of uniformity in sentencing even within the federal court sys-

There are other aspects of the administration of criminal justice that are often incomprehensible to the public. They begin in the magistrate's courts. And there is the perennial problem of parole.

No two crimes, no two criminals and, more important, no two judges, are exactly alike. Sentences for similar offenses can be lenient or severe depending, for one thing, on whether the judge is influenced more by his hope for the defendant's rehabilitation or by his belief in the social benefits of deterrence.

But when all the difficulties have been conceded, it must be admitted that from the public's standpoint there is much that is irrational about current procedures and practices, much that undermines its confidence in the administration of criminal justice. The American Law Institute's model code should encourage corrective measures long overdue.

War Is A Dirty Word

Whenever one says: But why not war?, the conversation freezes. War is a very dirty word. There is, at the moment, war in Vietnam, war in Laos, American troops in Thailand, war in Indonesia, a concentration of troops in West Berlin, submarine bases in foreign lands, missile bases all over the world.

But there is no war. In fact, we are believe that we are living in a state of peace. But where is the peace? Our budget for 1962-63 is a war budget and we would be justified in assuming that the war budget will continue for many years.

Surely, on this most pressing problem, we need to be realistic. We need to admit what actually exists.

The reason that it is possible for politicians to assume that war does not exist is that the current war is fought by different methods and by different weapons. For instance, the Russians spent a month exploding hydrogen bombs and now we are doing the same thing, in the name of science. Actually, this is a form of battle, each side saying to the other, "Look what I've got," "Look what I can do."

It is this curious war which overlays the world like a cloud. Every act of government is affected by it. Each government gauges the strength, at the moment, of the opposing sides. Presently, for instance, de Gaulle believes that he can restore France to be the central nation of Europe-that is, Western Europe, which has so long been dependent upon the United States. The great success of the Common Market leads the Western European countries to believe that they can free themselves from economic and political dependence upon the United States and at he same time set a force sufficiently powerful to relieve them of the fear of conquest by Russia.

Thus the current phase of a prolonged war is being fought by new and unusual physical and political means and we need to adjust our minds to that reality.

Had the United Nations served its original purpose, it might have been able to force this war into a debate within its halls. But the United Nations is actually a weaker body than the League of Nations was. Perhaps it is the diffusion of power which comes from having too many members and too many groups; perhaps it isis due to the age which seems to breed inefficiency. But it seems quite clear that the United Nations is not the place to settle the major issue of war.

Nor do Summit Conferences lessen the war activities of the contending nations. Beginning with Teheran (1943) and continuing to this very moment, Summit Conferences have occurred or have been

Only at the Summit Conference can some agreements be reached minimizing the cost and consequences of the present war. Thus far, the Summit Conferences have failed to accomplish anything of value, largely because of Russian stubbornness. This stubbornness is produced by Russian successes. Should Russia encounter failure, the Russians might become more willing to make concessions.

But these concessions can only be temporary because the Russians dare not move too far from their evangelical purpose which is that all the world must sooner or later be subverted to Marxism.

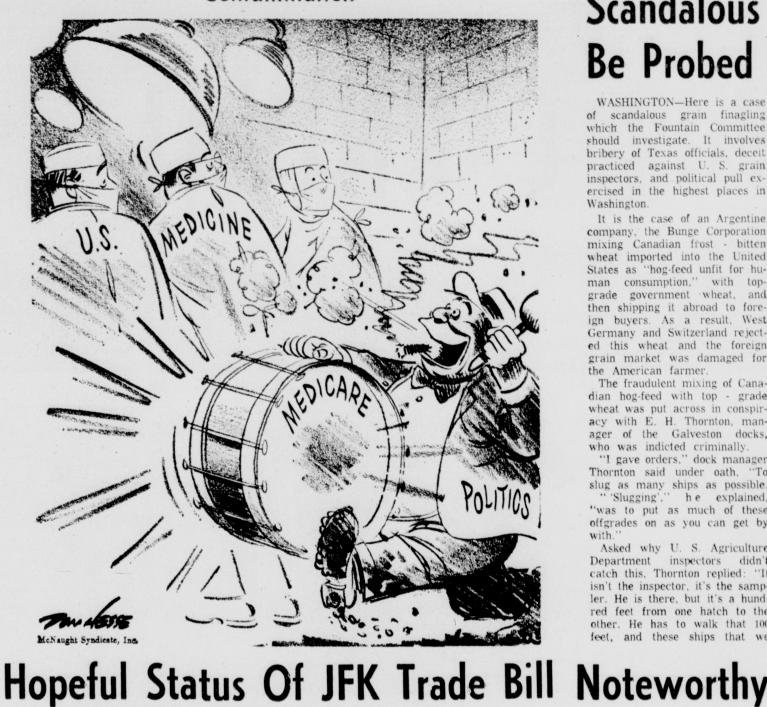

Wars for territory are easy to describe but psychological wars are often beyond understanding. They suffer from a fanaticism which reduces humanity to a theory and one side or the other plunges into methods which they themselves abhor. The goal is so clear that the means seem trifling, as long as they seem to be pragmatically efficient. There can be neither low nor morals in such a situation.

This is our present situation but it is very, very bad manners to talk about it in such terms. No, indeed! One calls it peace and bombs are exploded for scientific advancement. Also the astronauts circle the Earth for pursuit of pure science! Also we are going to the moon with the same objective. Peace! Ain't it wonderful!

It is because we find it so pleasurable to tease ourselves into believing the best. I suppose that is why marijuana is becoming such a business. However, we need to face facts as they are and live accordingly. We are at war with the Soviet Universal State. Our enemies are all the Communist countries, not only Soviet Russia and Red China but also Yugoslavia and

WASHINGTON-Here is a case of scandalous grain finagling which the Fountain Committee should investigate. It involves bribery of Texas officials, deceit practiced against U. S. grain inspectors, and political pull exercised in the highest places in

It is the case of an Argentine company, the Bunge Corporation mixing Canadian frost - bitten wheat imported into the United States as "hog-feed unfit for human consumption," with topgrade government wheat, and then shipping it abroad to foreign buyers. As a result, West Germany and Switzerland rejected this wheat and the foreign grain market was damaged for the American farmer.

The fraudulent mixing of Canadian hog-feed with top - grade wheat was put across in conspiracy with E. H. Thornton, manager of the Galveston docks, who was indicted criminally.

Thornton said under oath, "To slug as many ships as possible. 'Slugging'," he explained, "was to put as much of these offgrades on as you can get by

"I gave orders," dock manager

Asked why U. S. Agriculture Department inspectors didn't catch this, Thornton replied: "It isn't the inspector, it's the sampler. He is there, but it's a hundred feet from one hatch to the other. He has to walk that 100 feet, and these ships that we By Drew Pearson might have selected to slug would start at night. And he can't climb from one hatch to another in a few minutes. Bribery Of Dock Manager

Testimony indicated some of the big grain companies deliberately shipped spoiled wheat from Canada, where inspection is much stricter, to American ports where inspection is lax. This gave them a three-way advantage: 1, lower duty on wheat classified as hogfeed; 2, getting paid the U. S. government subsidy for export; getting a share of top-grade S. government wheat for which their spoiled wheat was substituted.

All this was accomplished through friendly elevator managers. Testimony revealed that $5,500 was paid to D. J. Sweeney, assistant superintendent of Elevator B at Galveston during the three-year period that Canadian hog-feed was secretly mixed and loaded. The payments were made by S. P. Perich, vice president of the Stone Forwarding Co., which handled all shipments for the Bunge Corp.

One revealing letter to W. G. Kellogg of the Bunge office in Minneapolis from R. E. Bailey in Fort Worth, indicated that other corporations were trying to get in on the wheat "slugging"

"The Galveston wharf manager told me that Cargill had been applying much pressure to get a good mix out of the Gulf but that he was going to take care of Bunge first, as he appreciated the current association. You of course, know the details of our arrangement with him."

When this letter was read by the Senate Agriculture Committee to elevator manager Thornton, he commented: "Well, we take care of our customers. Cargill was not a customer of ours."

Ike Intervenes When E. H. Thornton and officials of the Bunge Co. were about to go on trial, following their indictment, Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas flew to Washington, January 25, 1955, lunched with President Eisenhower, and on February 12, at a hurriedly called special Saturday session of the U. S. Although the Bunge Corporation, which cannot go to jail, pleaded guilty and was fined $5,-000, the incident created a bad precedent as to law inforcement for grain inspection in Texas, Some other cases did go to trial. Three officials of the Transit Grain Co. of Fort Worth, who also slugged ships, were fined $20,000 each and given three years in jail, while the agents for Bunge Corp. in Houston, who were caught bribing William Fellrath, manager of the Houston public elevator, to the tune of $14,229, did go to trial and were convicted.

Nevertheless, the word got around Texas that if you knew the right people in Washington you didn't have to worry about cheating Uncle Sam on crop surpluses. This lax atmosphere unquestionably led to such cases as that of Billie Sol Estes.

As E. H. Thornton bragged under oath of the Senate Agriculture Committee: "On foggy days the windows of the elevator would be conveniently left open to permit moisture to enter the elevator, thereby increasing the weight of the wheat. This practice would inure to the benefit of the elevator as overages.

"During a five-year period we made a profit of over a million dollars on overages.

There are as many images of Spellman as you might see standing in the center of a hall of mirrors. He administers his archdiocese as though his soul depended on it-as indeed it does. Physically, the Cardinal is a small, fast-moving man who knows, at all times, what he proposes to do and how he is going to do it. As I said before, it isn't easy to look into a clergyman's heart. Father Gannon has managed to do it. One of the great anecdotes is the story of the lost bishop. His name was Bonaventure F. Broderick, and Cardinal Spellman found him running a gasoline station near Millbrook, New York. Because of a mistake in orders, Bishop Broderick had been lost to the Catholic Church for 35

Cardinal Spellman was under no obligation to find him or reclaim him. Still, he drove to the filling station, located the old man, re-established him in the church, sent him to a hospital to regain his health, and brought him to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where Bishop Bonaventure lived out the remaining few years.

The old man died and his body reposed in state as his young friend the Cardinal sang the pontifical mass over his remains. When the old man's will was read, it stated that his precious possessions—the pectoral cross, the chains, the episcopal rings and crozier, had been left to the Car-

It is, as I say, a fine book. Out of all the characters in it, I feel that the great Christian is the Cardinal's mother, who wrote to him: "Be a good priest. All else is vanity."...

Ichthyosis is a hereditary condition in which the skin is rough and dry and appears to be covered by fish scales. Dryness and itching are the usual complaints. The cosmetic aspects also are bothersome until the individual learns to live with the condition.

Springtime has a way of cast-ing spells on college students who've been buried in their books all winter long.

They may find release in pantie parties or other capers, or, in more settled and sedate fashion, go off on hikes or picnic jaunts, or, just in lazy mood, stretch out to bathe their faces in the welcomed sun.

But for the boys and girls who attend Penn State College, spring has more auspicious meaning. It's the time of their annual fraternity and sorority carnival, and it's as big and professional as any tent show that swings from town to town with blaring fanfare.

For weeks before the Penn State carnival opened, the campus at University Park rang with the sound of hammers as the students built huge sets and figures and painted them with their own hands. The fraternity and sorority groups set up their own tents, group planned, rehearsed and acted out their own skit or plays. When opening day rolled around, there were in true tradition of country carnivals, the tents, the flags, the shills, the barkers, and the vendors with their sweets and wares.

This year's theme was "Peaceful Co-Existence." Each tent represented a different foreign country. The theme was quite apt since Penn State is one of the nation's schools chosen to train men and women for the Peace Corps.

With strong, willing hands, students Ann Barnes of Palmyra, Pa., and Jack Cartwright of Camp Hill, Pa., carry a set for their Cuban tent.

Boy meets girl, and cotton candy - what could be nicer at carnival time? Boy is Bill Jamison; girl, Fran Lawrence. Both are students.

The "Virtuous Vikings" perform—but what did the girls' profs say about this?

With jungle fervor, members of Phi Gamma drum up business outside their African tent.

Frostburg's streaking Merchants made it nine victories in a row yesterday and increased their Pen Mar Baseball League lead by trimming runner-up Barrelville's Old Exports, 5-2, behind the six-hit pitching of righthander Ralph Peace.

The undefeated Merchants jumped on starter and loser Dave Vance for three runs in the second inning and were never headed as they made it two straight wins this season over Barrelville. The Old Exports dropped a 5-4 decision at Frostburg earlier in the campaign. Strikes Out Eight

Peace struck out eight and walked but three in his routegoing effort as he chalked up his fifth mound triumph. The Merchants clinched the verdict when Gary Keedy opened the second frame with a double and Dick Pitko walked.

Peace's double drove home the first two runs of the game and the Frostburg hurler came racing home moments later on Jimmy Rice's single. The Merchants added two more runs in the third and Barrelville was never able to catch up.

Frostburg now leads Barrelville by 21/2 games in the seventeam circuit.

The Mt. Savage Old Germans got a fine shutout performance from Ralph Dickel to blank Hyndman's Merchants, 7-0, yesterday at Mt. Savage.

"Lefty" Sloan, senior basketball and baseball star at LaSalle High School, was the winner of the 25th Rapplier Club Award at the school's 53rd commencement last night at Carroll Hall. The award is for excellence in studies and athletics and is donated by the Rapplier Club, composed of members of LaSalle's 1933 graduating class. Frostburg's streaking Merchants made it nine victories in a vesterday and increased their Pen Mar Baseball League lead by trimming runner-up Barrelville's Old Exports, 5-2, behind the six-hit pitching of righthander Ralph Peace.

The undefeated Merchants jumped on starter and loser Dave Vance for three runs in the second inning and were never headed as they made it two straight wins this season over Barrelville. The Old Exports dropped a 5-4 decision at Frostburg earlier in the campaign. Strikes Out Eight

Peace struck out eight and walked but three in his routegoing effort as he chalked up his fifth mound triumph. The Merchants clinched the verdict when Gary Keedy opened the second frame with a double and Dick Pitko walked.

Peace's double drove home the first two runs of the game and the Frostburg hurler came racing home moments later on Jimmy Rice's single. The Merchants added two more runs in the third and Barrelville was never able to catch up.

Good Old Days Gone Forever, Graduates Told

193 Degrees Are Awarded At FSTC

Graduates of Frostburg State Teachers College yesterday were told that teachers in the school of the 1960's must be prepared to recognize inevitable social, economic and political changes and "be ready to adapt yourself and your teaching to them."

Dr. Richard D. Weigle, presi dent of St. John's College, An napolis, said the "good old days are indeed gone forever and we must live with the tensions and the pressures of the changing conditions of the '60's.'

Teachers who can remain abreast of the broad movements and problems of his day, he said, can minister better to the needs of the children he teaches and prepare them more adequately to cope with their lives ahead.

But he stressed the role of the teacher is not limited to this and that he must "first and foremost be a master of the subject matter which he teaches."

"Your role as a teacher," he said. "is not only to continue to learn but also to teach."

Good Old Days Gone Forever, Graduates Told

193 Degrees Are Awarded At FSTC

Graduates of Frostburg State Teachers College yesterday were told that teachers in the school of the 1960's must be prepared to recognize inevitable social, economic and political changes and "be ready to adapt yourself and your teaching to them."

Dr. Richard D. Weigle, presi dent of St. John's College, Annapolis, said the "good old days are indeed gone forever and we must live with the tensions and the pressures of the changing conditions of the '60's.'

Teachers who can remain abreast of the broad movements and problems of his day, he said, can minister better to the needs of the children he teaches and prepare them more adequately to cope with their lives ahead.

But he stressed the role of the teacher is not limited to this and that he must "first and foremost be a master of the subject matter which he teaches."

"Your role as a teacher," he said, "is not only to continue to learn but also to teach."
